Stephen Fry plays Santa as he joins Kiefer Sutherland and Kevin McNally in the festive crime comedy Marked

NEW COMEDY DRAMA Playhouse Presents: Marked

Thursday, Sky Arts 1 HD, 10pm

A dark starless night in a London street. His face hidden by a balaclava, Kiefer Sutherland is on a deadly mission as he closes in on his victim...

It sounds like a scene straight out of 24, but this time Sutherland is playing it strictly for laughs in Sky Arts' Marked, a quirky Christmas comedy drama about a reluctant hitman who couldn't be more unlike his rogue agent Jack Bauer.

The one-off special follows the misfortunes of James, played by Sutherland, a former US Marine Corps logistics worker now living in a drab London suburb with a wife and daughter. Unemployed, drowning in debt, and facing the prospect of having his house repossessed, James is unexpectedly handed a financial lifeline when his golf-mad neighbour Brian (Kevin McNally) comes to him with a crazy idea.

'Brian's wife has been cheating on him with a bloke called Steve, so he asks James to bump him off for £1200,' reveals McNally. 'James makes a very unlikely hitman, but his life is collapsing around him, so he eventually agrees.'

to commit the murder, he's shocked to discover Father Christmas (Stephen Fry) warming himself by the fire. Will Santa be caught up in the deadly plot, or will James learn the importance of peace on Earth and goodwill to all men?

'The story is a lovely twisted Christmas tale,' says McNally. 'Because Kiefer is so synonymous with Jack Bauer, it is really funny to see him play this bungling assassin.'

The Bristol-born actor, seen recently in the Channel 4 drama The Mill, had never worked with Sutherland before, though they had often met socially through their mutual friend, actor Greg Ellis, who wrote and directed Marked.

'To get the chance | to work with Kiefer twice in one year was pretty good'

The comedy also reunited McNally with Stephen Fry. The pair had remained friends after meeting on the set of 1992 drama Common Pursuit.

'Stephen really is a national treasure; he has proved himself over versatile. We had a very funny time on set – it was more like a holiday

'Working with Kiefer was like a Christmas present in itself,' says the 57-year-old. 'I don't know of many stars as charming and humble and with such a great capacity for work'.

Shortly after making Marked, McNally teamed up with Sutherland and Fry again for 24: Live Another Day, which saw Fry play the British PM and McNally guest as a Russian agent who whisks Bauer away in a helicopter in the very final scene.

'Kiefer told me there was a tiny part that he wanted me to play,' smiles McNallv. 'I wasn't too keen at first because it only had a couple of lines. Then he said, "Yes, but you play the man who gets Jack Bauer". How could I refuse that? To get the chance to work with Kiefer twice in one year was pretty good.'

McNally is currently in the US filming the second series of the period drama TURN: Washington's Spies before he returns home to spend Christmas in England with his wife Phyllis Logan, who plays unflappable housekeeper Mrs Hughes in Downton Abbey.

'Over in the US Downton is incredibly popular', says the 58-year-old. 'I only have to mention that I am married to Mrs Hughes and the free drinks come thick and fast.'

Next year, McNally will return to the US to continue filming TURN, which will shortly air in the UK on Netflix.

'I wouldn't be surprised if I was in America for quite a few years making TURN, and the plan is for Phyllis to join me out there,' he reveals.

She is obviously committed to Downton, but when that comes to a conclusion, she'll come to the US. She just did an episode of Bones, and it gave her the confidence that she will be able to find work. I told her she would be able to play every glamorous granny on US television.'

WHO PLAYED SANTA?

Plenty have played Father Christmas on screen. Can you remember who is behind the beard in these pictures?

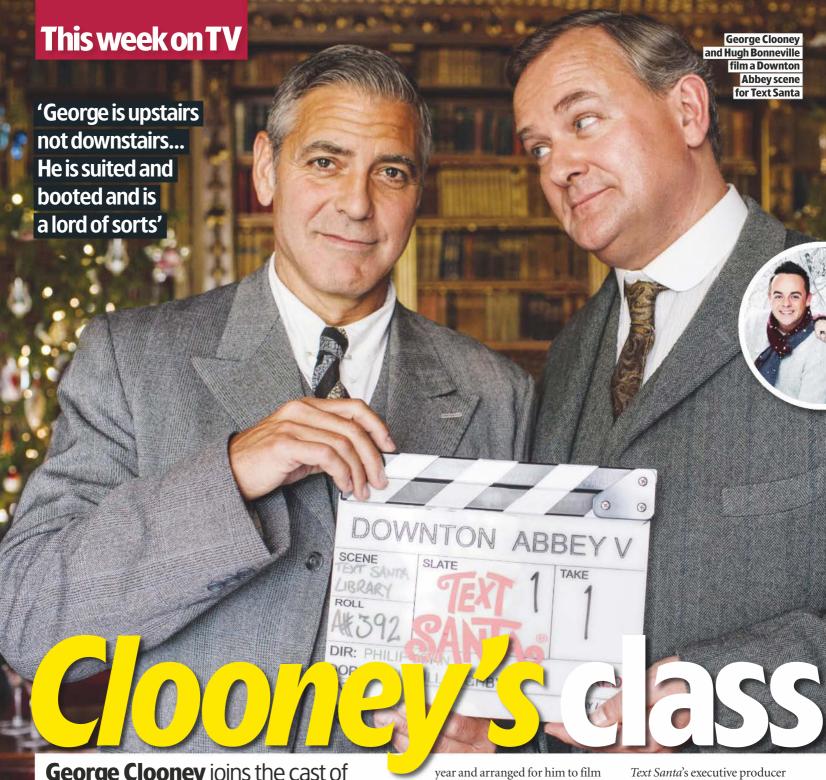

Answers: (1) Tim Allen in The Santa Clause 3, (2) Richard Attenborough in Miracle on 34th Street, (3) Nigel Hawthorne in Call Me Claus, (4) Leslie Nielsen in All I Want for Christmas, (5) Billy Bob Thornton in Bad Santa

George Clooney joins the cast of Downton Abbey for a Text Santa special

NEW CHARITY FUNDRAISER Text Santa Friday, ITV HD, 8pm

A host of famous faces have graced the hallowed corridors of Downton Abbey over the years, from Richard E Grant to Shirley MacLaine and Kiri Te Kanawa – and now it's the turn of George Clooney.

Ever since the news emerged a couple of months ago that Clooney was taking part in a Downton sketch for ITV's Text Santa appeal, fans of the period drama have been eager to see how he would intermingle with the Crawleys and their staff.

All will be revealed in Friday's special instalment, part of the star-studded annual pre-Christmas charity telethon, presented by Phillip Schofield, Christine Bleakley, Ant and Dec, Alesha Dixon and Paddy McGuinness.

Although Downton has many celebrity fans across the Atlantic, it's still no mean feat getting a Hollywood A-lister to appear in the sketch, which will also feature Jeremy Piven as Mr Selfridge.

Fittingly, it was all made possible by Hugh Bonneville, aka Lord Grantham, who worked with the Oscar winner on World War Two film Monuments Men earlier this at Highclere Castle in Berkshire, where Downton is shot. 'The producer said, "What are our chances of getting George?" and I said, "Zero - he is a busy man". But I got in touch and he very kindly said that he had one afternoon when he could come down to the castle,' explains Bonneville. 'He was amazing, absolutely hilarious, good company and a real gentleman, so we were all very grateful.

Although much of the content of the sketch is being kept secret, we do know that the 53-year-old newlywed will not be playing himself. 'George is upstairs not downstairs and he looks fabulous. He is suited and booted and he is playing a lord of sorts, but I can't tell you exactly who,' teases

Katie Rawcliffe.

'It's set at Christmas at Downton and Lord Grantham seems to be facing financial ruin once again. He wonders whether his family may be better off without him. But there is a divine intervention in the form of a very special heavenly bodya guiding spirit.'

Clooney will also be seen kissing a couple of the Downton ladies, including Cora, played by Elizabeth McGovern, and the dowager, Violet, played by Maggie Smith, who even faints in front of him.

'It's a brilliant moment between Maggie and George,' says Laura Carmichael, who plays Edith. 'Maggie does a great comedy fall when George plants a kiss and she ends up on the floor. It's wonderful.'

THE TEXT SANTA HIGHLIGHTS

Birds of a Feather

Chigwell's finest – Sharon, Tracey and Dorien, played by Pauline Quirke, Linda Robson and Lesley Joseph – will appear in a one-off sketch, joined by an unusual Santa.

The Cube

Text Santa co-hosts Alesha Dixon and Paddy McGuinness will become the first ever duo to step into the Perspex box to take part in Phillip Schofield's tricky gameshow.

I'm a Celebrity

Along with hosting a Text Santa twist on Saturday Night Takeaway, Ant and Dec (left) will present the first part of the evening's entertainment, which will see one poor celebrity undertake a Yuletucker Trial

Coronation Street & Emmerdale

The X Factor judge Mel B will be one of several guests making a visit to the cobbles for an encounter with the Corrie cast. Meanwhile, the Emmerdale cast will also deliver a special message.

Also look out for...

Olly Murs and this year's X Factor winner will perform on the night; there's a sneak peek behind the scenes at the ITV Christmas party; and Carey Mulligan, Brenda Blethyn, Holly Willoughby and Simon Cowell will highlight the work of the various charities

'He was kissing everybody that day,' adds McGovern. 'We were all thrilled but I was a bit shocked to see his wedding go ahead after our day together!

So could we see Clooney becoming a regular at the Abbey?

'He was very generous to do it and that indicates that his heart is in the right place,' says Downton creator Julian Fellowes.

'As far as I'm concerned he can have what he wants and take over from Maggie if he likes!'

This year's Text Santa charities are Teenage Cancer Trust, Guide Dogs, WellChild, Marie Curie Cancer Care, Alzheimer's Society and Together for Short Lives. Viewers aged over 16 can donate £5 or £10 by texting SANTA5 or SANTA10 to 70760.

Black Mirror: White Christmas

Tuesday, Channel 4 HD, 9pm

Fans of Charlie Brooker's Black Mirror will know that the darkly satirical series reflects the writer's fears that modern technology is warping our lives, and this year's Christmas special is no exception.

The 90-minute anthology is made up of three interwoven stories of techno-paranoia, which anyone who uses a smartphone or social media will find a little terrifying.

'It is certainly a counterpoint to the sort of feelgood special you tend to get at this time of the year, says Brooker, whose seasonal offering has attracted a Christmas cracker of a cast, including Mad Men's Jon Hamm, Rafe Spall and Oona Chaplin.

Hamm, who appears in all three stories, knows better than to give away much of the plot when TV&Satellite Week chats to him on set. 'I've done eight seasons of Mad Men so I'm used to not saying anything in interviews, he smiles.

What I will say is that Black Mirror looks at ideas that are familiar to everyone and takes them to an extreme that will most likely happen for real in our lifetimes.'

The 43-year-old actor shares Brooker's concerns over modern Oona Chaplin 'Social media makes me uncomfortable. It's a voluntary giving up of privacy'

JON HAMM

Rafe Spall and society's obsession with technology. 'It's omnipresent and it's likely to explode even further. I have no presence whatsoever on Twitter or Facebook and that was a conscious choice,' he explains.

'Social media makes me uncomfortable. It's a voluntary giving up of privacy, which I don't understand. The weirdest part of it now is that it's expected - you're expected to want to post private things on YouTube that everyone is supposed to want to share. It's very strange. I think I'm a generation too late for it and thank God.

but he loves Brooker's work.

Black Mirror airs on an obscure channel in the US, but a friend of mine was an early adopter of the series, he says. I watched it and was immediately taken with just how audacious and original it was. Charlie's very humble about saying it's inspired by a lot of things, but it's unlike almost anything else on TV, certainly in the US. I watched all the episodes in the space of 36 hours and I was dumbfounded from one to the next.

'This script is certainly the best thing I've read in some time.'

Hamm, who has starred in Sky Arts' A Young Doctor's Notebook, has long been a devotee of British shows. T've been a fan of British television ever since I can remember. I think back to being a kid and PBS would show re-runs of Monty Python, Blackadder and Doctor Who,' he says. 'I liked those shows because they were approachable but very different, and that has informed my choices of what I do post-Mad Men.'

Meanwhile, Hamm already has his Christmas schedule sorted.

'My girlfriend Jen and I usually pack the dog in the car and drive up the coast of California to have Christmas with my aunt and uncle and then we keep driving,' he smiles. 'I won't be able to watch Black Mirror, but maybe someone will send me the DVD!

NEW AWARDS CEREMONY
The British
Comedy Awards
Wednesday, Channel 4 HD, 9pm

As the cream of Britain's comedy talent gathers for its annual awards ceremony, it comes as a surprise to learn that Ade Edmondson doesn't think of himself as a comedian. In fact, he's pretty sick of the whole comedy thing.

'I mean, I know I did The Young Ones and Bottom and various other outings, but... I never felt like a comedian,' he says. 'I never stood up and cracked gags. I've always been part of a double act or a fiction.

'Do you call Ronnie Barker a comedian?' he asks. Yes, we say, we do. Edmondson considers this. 'You see, I think he's better than that.'

Still, the 57-year-old concedes he enjoys a good double act — which is lucky because he was part of one himself, and is married to Jennifer Saunders, one half of French and Saunders and the mother of their three grown-up daughters. Also, one of his co-stars in his current project, the West End play Neville's Island, is Robert Webb, one half of comedy duo Mitchell and Webb.

'There's a dynamic between a pair, which is infinitely more interesting than one person's psychosis or whether their girlfriend's left them or not,' he says.

For many years, Edmondson's partner in comedy was Rik Mayall, whom he met at university and who became his best friend and long-term collaborator. Together, they wrote and starred in some of the most popular alternative comedy programmes of the 1980s, including The Comic Strip Presents... and The Young Ones.

In 1991, they teamed up again to write

Bottom, which was a cult hit and spawned a stage show and a spin-off movie, Guest House Paradiso.

Mayall also enjoyed individual success, and won Best TV Comedy

Actor at the 1993 Comedy Awards for Rik Mayall Presents, six standalone ITV comedy dramas. But it is for his work alongside Edmondson that Mayall is still best remembered.

'I have never laughed as hard as I have writing with Rik,' Edmondson says now. 'Apoplectic laughter.'

'Rik's death was iust enormous. I don't know how to talk about it to other people'

And then, in June this year, Rik died. He had never been quite the same since a serious quad-bike accident in 1998 left him in a coma for several days, says Edmondson; the incident left Mayall 'strangely more emotional; still very funny'. His death was horribly sudden.

'Rik's death was just enormous, and I haven't talked to anyone other than close friends about it,' he admits. 'I don't really know how to talk about it to other people. I'm aware that people want something from me and I don't quite know how to give them what they want.'

He looks apologetic. 'I knew you'd ask and, erm, I've been trying to think of a cogent way of talking about it, but I think, the thing is, I'm completely awash.'

The death of Mayall – who will be the subject of a BBC tribute to be shown over Christmas – was made more difficult by the fact that the duo had not worked together for 10 years. Edmondson hadn't wanted to retread old ground: he was proud of what they'd achieved and thought it stood on its own merits.

He wanted to try different things: he formed a folk band, The Bad Shepherds, in 2008; he presented a few documentary series; and last year he won Celebrity MasterChef.

He didn't want to reunite with Mayall just to do 'a bad, late series like Morecambe and Wise'. He felt they'd had their allotted two boiled eggs, so why would they want four?

It was a decision, he says, that 'confused' his writing partner: 'I spent 10 years trying to explain to him why I didn't want to work with him, you know, and it was tough.'

But they remained friends. The last time Edmondson saw Mayall, the pair went for a walk in London's Hyde Park: 'We had a great time... and chatted about ordinary stuff.'

They got on so well, he thinks, because of a shared background. Both were the children of teachers, both went to 'middle-class, direct-grant schools'.

'We were both, sort of, arty but with a taste for beer,' he says, only half-joking. 'So when we met we had a kind of shorthand.'

Simply divine

Bette Midler sings and shares showbiz stories in her first-ever UK TV special

NEW ENTERTAINMENT Bette Midler: One Night Only Monday, ITV HD, 9pm

No wonder they call her The Divine Miss M. Bette Midler is the epitome of showbiz: an entertainer who is able to command a Broadway stage as easily as a movie screen or a concert auditorium in Las Vegas.

For the past 50 years, Midler, now 69, has been wowing audiences with her big, belting voice and outrageous persona in concert, and delivering critically acclaimed turns in movies such as The Rose and For the Boys.

She prides herself on coming alive in front of a camera or before an audience – and she does both this week in ITV's Bette Midler: One Night Only. But, she admits, preparing for the special was hard work since she hadn't undertaken a full-scale show for some time.

'To get back on my feet with my band and my backing singers and all those costumes was a bit of a struggle. But it was worth it,' she says.

'It was great fun, although I had to get fit again first. You need to get your lungs going and that involves the treadmill. If your pump isn't working properly, you're out of luck.'

Midler – named after actress Bette Davis by her film-fan mother – put in the effort because One Night Only is a showcase for her new album, It's the Girls!, on which she sings her versions of songs originally made famous by all-girl groups, including You Can't Hurry Love by The Supremes and Waterfalls by TLC.

As well as singing tracks from the album, Midler also performs her classic hits, including From a Distance and Wind Beneath My Wings, and discusses her long and varied career with the programme's host, Joanna Lumley.

That career began when, as a youngster, Midler won a singing contest in her home-town of Honolulu, Hawaii, and, soon after, discovered a love of the stage at a local community theatre. By the

'I'm not saying that entertainment is a childish thing but, in time, you grow up' time she was 22, she was appearing on Broadway in Fiddler on the Roof.

However, her career has faltered at times: following her three-year stint on Broadway, acting roles dried up and she reinvented herself as a torch singer, spicing up her act with snappy and risqué dialogue, which included impersonations of Mae West.

Midler's outsize personality proved a hit on the club stage. After doing the rounds in New York, she released her first album with her accompanist, a then-unknown Barry Manilow, who has called her 'the most talented and craziest woman' he's ever met.

That 1972 platinum-selling album, The Divine Miss M, catapulted Midler to stardom and led to TV gigs that were followed by movie offers.

The 1979 film drama The Rose won her an Oscar nod, and in the mid-1980s she displayed a gift for comedy in Down and Out in Beverly Hills and Ruthless People, before enjoying another career high with the 1988 tear-jerker Beaches.

Off screen, Midler found personal happiness with performance artist Martin von Haselberg, whom she married in 1984. Two years later, they had a daughter, Sophie, now an actress.

More recently she has turned to Las Vegas – her show, The Showgirl Must Go On, ran from 2008 to 2010 – and last year it was announced that she would play her heroine Mae West in an HBO movie biography.

Next year, Midler will embark on her first UK tour for 35 years.

Surprisingly, though, the star says she won't go on performing till she drops. 'I'm coming to the end of the line. When you have more of the road behind you than ahead, it becomes a very focusing thing. And you start thinking about the world.

Tve never been to Africa or South America,' she reveals. Tve never seen a rhinoceros. I've achieved my childhood dream. I'm not saying that entertainment is a childish thing but, in time, you do grow up.

'Now the dream is just about over. I'm still alive, still vibrant. But I would like to see what other dreams I can come up with.'

So, with all she has done and learned along the way, what advice would Midler give her 16-year-old self if she were sitting beside her now?

'If your panties fall down around your feet, just step out of them and keep on singing!'

BETTE ON FILM MIDLER'S HOLLYWOOD HITS

BUSINESS The Apprentice Wednesday, BBC1 HD, 9pm

Ricky Martin won the 2012 series of The Apprentice, but not before being verbally slaughtered during the interview stage. One of Ricky's interrogators, Claude Littner.

interrogators, Claude Littner, memorably described his personal statement as being 'crass, obnoxious and infantile'.

So Martin admits it feels strange to join the business executive, magazine boss Mike Soutar, and media managing director

Claudine Collins in grilling the current crop for the interview round, which will decide who makes next week's final.

'Claude gave me a particularly tough time,' recalls Martin. 'But I was given a hard time based on an application form I'd completed while sitting on my sofa watching The Apprentice and thinking, "I want to go on that show, so let's write something that will stand out". 'It's surreal to now be interviewing the candidates and helping Lord Sugar make his decisions.'

Martin, a biochemist, recruitment manager and former wrestler, used Lord Sugar's £250,000 investment to launch his Essex-based company, Hyper Recruitment Solutions.

'Lord Sugar turned around to me and said, "We've been running this company together for the last two years and you've actually been hiring people into my companies, so would you like to help me do the interviews?"

The 29-year-old admits he said some daft things during his time on the show, including the following gem: 'I'm like a shark, right at the top of the food chain.

I take what I want,
when I want. I truly
am the reflection of perfection.'

'I went into *The*Apprentice talking a lot of game at the start before I could back it up,' he smiles. 'And some of the candidates have done exactly the same this time.'

Martin, who shortened his name from Richard to Ricky – like the pop singer – so people would remember him, points to Daniel as one who's spouted the most garbage, but also believes he isn't all bad.

'There are people who talk a lot of rubbish but don't try hard and just hide behind it. And then there's someone like Daniel, who also talks a lot of rubbish, but who is genuinely trying. As a former market trader, Daniel has sold things in the wet and cold, which is something I imagine Lord Sugar can relate to.'

Martin says he has been loving the current series, especially the cringeworthy moments. 'The most embarrassing moment was when James started singing The Wheels on the Bus during his team's coach trip,' he laughs. 'I certainly would have been asking for a full refund at the end of that.'

Martin adds that Lord Sugar has been excellent to work with. 'He's very straight down the line. Whether he likes something or doesn't, he'll tell you exactly how it is.'

So, will Ricky be equally tough for the interviews?

'I'm a direct interviewer,' he explains. 'I'll be asking very probing questions so I can understand what somebody's about.'

Trusted aides Nick Hewer and Karren Brady help profile the boardroom survivors in The Final Five on Tuesday, BBC1 HD, 10.35pm (Scotland, 11.35pm), and Lord Sugar explains the harsh realities of business in Why I Fired Them on Thursday, BBC1 HD, 10.35pm.

Strictly's Craig Revel Horwood picks his best dances since the show began

DANCE CONTEST Strictly Come Dancing Saturday, BBC1 HD, 6.50pm

Ahead of this week's Strictly semi-final, we asked judge Craig Revel Horwood to reveal his six favourite routines from a decade of dazzling dances...

Best Samba 2004 Julian Clary & Erin Boag

Erin Boag
'I loved Julian with his maracas – he was iconic.
The routine wasn't executed well but it was memorable and certainly a crowd-pleaser. He finally got a dance that allowed him to act and it was really funny to watch.'

Best Jive 2004 Jill Halfpenny & Darren Bennett

Darren Bennett
'This was the first time
I ever marked a 10 and it was a surprise that a celebrity could get to that standard. Jill set the benchmark, and from then on the contestants became more competitive and interested in the dancing.'

Best Paso doble 2007 Kenny Logan & Ola Jordan

'This was exciting because we got to see a rugby player doing the paso in a kilt. It was a really powerful routine and it got a standing ovation every night on the Strictly tour – they brought the house down.'

st Charleston 2009 Chris Hollins & Ola Jordan

'This was a brilliant dance and it won the programme for them. Ola choreographed a very special routine and it suited Chris down to the ground because he was cheeky. They both just looked pint-sized and so cute.'

Best Quickstep 2011 Harry Judd & Aliona Vilani

'Harry flew across the floor and looked as good as the pros – he was flawless. It was a really exciting routine, and when you put your pen down and stop thinking of negative things to say, that's when you know it deserves a 10.

2013 Abbey Clancy &

'This was absolutely beautiful. The waltz is slow and very challenging, so it's hard to make it look amazing. Abbey performed with grace, style and ambition, and she and Aljaz were a great partnership.'

NEW DRAMA Olive Kitteridge

Sunday & Monday, Sky Atlantic HD, 9pm

Six years ago, a friend of Frances McDormand gave her the Pulitzer prize-winning novel Olive Kitteridge by Elizabeth Strout, with the recommendation that it be turned into a film.

'I loved it, but I put it aside. It was not a novel I thought needed to be made into a movie,' the 57-year-old actress recalls. 'I didn't think two hours was long enough to tell such a good story, and I didn't want to diminish it.'

However, McDormand couldn't get the book out of her head. Eventually, it occurred to her that a TV mini-series would be the perfect format. 'I was 51 or 52 at the time, and I wanted to start generating my own work, so I optioned it for a series,' she explains.

McDormand's initial misgivings were understandable. The novel is made up of 13 short stories and spans a quarter of a century in a seemingly ordinary tale of an acerbic maths teacher, Olive, with an abrasive habit of speaking the truth, however much it hurts others.

The job of adapting such difficult material for the small screen fell to Mad Men writer Jane Anderson, who turned it into a poignant, slow-burning two-parter, shown over consecutive nights this week on Sky Atlantic.

'My job was to look at the essence of this fabulous book that had no dramatic narrative whatsoever,' Anderson says. 'It was the hardest assignment I've ever had because I think there's a rule: the greater the piece of literature, the harder it is to adapt for television.

'Olive is that horrible maths teacher you had in school,' she adds. 'She's the cranky neighbour who won't talk to you over the fence. She's the lady on the street who has that look on her face – though she's infinitely decent, brave and noble.'

The story begins in the woods of New England where a 70-year-old Olive, played by McDormand, lays down a woollen blanket and loads up a gun, before winding back to 25 years earlier, to the home she shares with her cheerful pharmacist husband, Henry (Six Feet Under's Richard Jenkins), and their teenage son Christopher.

'In the first hour of the story, you meet Olive and Henry at a crisis in their life,' says McDormand.'And then you see how that crisis reverberates and ripples through the rest of their marriage, and how it affects not only their son, but also the community they live in.'

In one scene, Henry finds the Valentine's card he had given to Olive thrown in the garbage, only for Olive to coldly explain, 'I already read it'.

It soon becomes clear that Olive is struggling with depression, and has a family history of the illness.

'When she was 13, her father committed suicide and she found

'Olive is the horrible maths teacher you had; the cranky neighbour who won't talk to you...'

JANE ANDERSON Scriptwriter

him in the kitchen, explains McDormand. From that point on, the fear of connecting and surrendering herself to her son, to her husband, to anyone was a real risk. The drama is about how a marriage survives depression - and not just one woman's depression, but generations of depression.'

The story is set in Crosby, Maine, though it was shot on location in Massachusetts, 'The most important thing was that it wasn't quaint Maine,' says McDormand. 'It was a working Maine, and a working-class Maine. It was a town that had an industrial past, and what you see in the 25 years the drama spans is that the industry really changes from small, privately-owned firms to corporately-owned businesses.'

Born in Chicago, McDormand spent much of her childhood in small-town Pennsylvania after being adopted by a preacher and his wife. After leaving home in her teens, she began her career on Broadway before making her name in 1988's Mississippi Burning, for which she was Oscar-nominated. In 1996, she won the Best Actress Oscar as police chief Marge Gunderson in the Coen brothers' classic dark thriller Fargo.

'When I look back on the arc of my acting career, I have pretty much played working-class or middle-class women, and those roles have served me well.

'In most of my film roles I've played supporting characters to male protagonists, and that often happens in women's lives. Whether it be our husbands, our sons, our bosses – we play a supporting role to men.

'I think that's part of what Olive Kitteridge is about – a woman who, under a lot of circumstances, would be invisible. But she makes sure she is not.'

to contact - he has no agent and doesn't like email – but McDormand, who starred with Murray as a husband and wife in 2012 movie Moonrise Kingdom, managed to track him down to offer him the role. 'It's really great to see Bill play a grown-up. He's never left his inner child, but Jack Kennison is a full-on, fullyfledged, grieving grown-up. And that, I think, was heaven for Bill to play.'

NEW MEMORY Memory Slam Tuesday, Watch HD, 8pm

If you're the type of person who always needs to make a list to remember things, then help could be at hand in this week's Watch documentary Memory Slam, presented by Countdown maths whizz Rachel Riley.

The one-off programme follows eight schoolchildren, aged 12-14, as they take on various mental challenges over the two-day UK Schools Memory Championships. Watching over proceedings are former Strictly Come Dancing contestant Riley and eight-time world memory champion Dominic O'Brien.

'They're just normal kids from various different backgrounds,' explains Riley, whose mental arithmetic skills are kept up to scratch by her day job, which includes solving problems on the Countdown numbers board.

'They didn't have a special aptitude or know they had a particularly good memory beforehand. They just entered a competition at school and these eight finalists were then given specialist training by a memory champion and taught memory techniques – that's how they became so good.'

Apparently, these are techniques that anyone can learn to help them perform feats of memory they never thought possible. For instance, in one particularly tricky challenge, the contestants must remember 104 random objects in the correct sequence – so how do they manage that?

'There's a technique called the "journey system", explains Riley. 'In your mind, you put the objects somewhere familiar, for instance in your home. Start off in one room and mentally place some objects there, and then move on into other rooms upstairs and downstairs.

'When remembering numbers, you have a visual image of an object or person that goes with each number,' she adds.

'I use memory techniques to remember the names of the many different contestants we have on Countdown. It's about using visual aids: you picture someone you know-or a well-known person with the same name – doing something bizarre with an unusual object. The weirder the image, the better.'

The good news is that the more you practise using visual aids, the easier recalling things becomes.

'That's why learning the timestable is so important for children—it's instant recall and it speeds everything up,' says Riley, 28, who hopes programmes like Memory Slam can help to popularise maths in the way that Professor Brian Cox has been instrumental in transforming the image of science among young people.

'Your brain is a muscle, and if you practise things and use it a lot, it becomes stronger.'

Riley certainly needed to build up her 'muscle memory' ahead of her appearances as a Strictly contestant last year, and she readily admits it was quite hard to remember her dance sequences.

'On Strictly, I found out I was a perfectionist and I was always beating myself up about things,' says Riley.
'I never set a realistic target, so whenever I did anything I'd criticise the bad things about it.

'But now it's all about learning to appreciate the good things...'

Meryl Streep and Tommy Lee Jones play a couple whose 30-year marriage has grown stale and sexless, so they set off for a week of intensive couple's counselling under the gentle guidance of Steve Carell's celebrity therapist. The film takes a while to ignite – indeed, there are times when the dullness of the couple's marriage seems to be seeping into the film – but Streep and Jones's performances gradually draw you in and, thanks to them, the story is tender, sad, funny and honest. 2012, 12, 100MIN

A calculating teen comedy that ruthlessly exploits the average adolescent's obsession with sex in the tale of a group of male friends who enter into a pact to lose their virginity before they graduate from high school. The film isn't really interested in exploring the realities of adolescent fumblings, but instead presents a series of raunchy sketches interspersed with some winsome romance. PAY-PER-VIEW HIGHLIGHTS

The pick of the week on Sky Store and Virgin Movies

Cold in July

Dexter star Michael C Hall plays a jittery everyman hero in a tense, twisty crime thriller set in Texas in 1989. Hall's meek family man is hailed a hero after killing a would-be burglar but incurs the wrath of the criminal's ex-con father (Sam Shepard). The film's characters are richly drawn and superbly acted. (15, 110min)

Dawn of the Planet of the Apes ****

Both an exciting action movie and an intelligent moral fable. this seguel to 2011's Rise of the Planet of the Apes is another superior slice of sci-fi. Set 10 vears after the earlier film, the story sees a band of human survivors coming into conflict with a genetically enhanced tribe of intelligent apes led by prime primate Caesar (Andy Serkis). (12, 130min)

The Face of Love

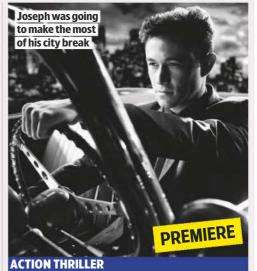

Annette Bening's grief-stricken widow stumbles upon the double of her dead husband (Ed Harris) and inveigles her way into his life without telling him why she is drawn to him. Things get extremely messy when he starts falling in love with her. Bening and Harris pour so much genuine emotion into their roles that they just about carry the film's fanciful premise. (12, 90min)

God's Pocket

PREMIERE (Sky Store & Virgin Movies from Mon) Actor John Slattery makes his feature film directing debut with this darkly comic crime drama set in a tough, working-class corner of late-1970s Philadelphia known as 'God's Pocket'. Philip Seymour Hoffman is typically superb in one of his final roles as one of the district's scrappy blue-collar denizens, and he is backed by Slattery's Mad Men co-star Christina Hendricks as his disappointed wife. (15, 89min)

Guardians of the Galaxy

This freewheeling Marvel Comics movie is an entertaining sci-fi romp about a band of vagabonds who stumble into a quest to save the galaxy from destruction. The group's self-appointed leader is Chris Pratt's swaggering space adventurer, and he gets oddball support from the likes of a talking raccoon. (12, 121 min)

Second time around, the film's pulp-noir sensibility feels a bit jaded, but many of the images still dazzle. 2014, 18, 102MIN

Hercules

Dwayne Johnson makes the perfect lead in this amiable tongue-in-cheek adventure. His Hercules is not the familiar demigod of legend but a warrior for hire with a trusty band of companions. Transformers: Age of Extinction

The fourth sci-fi blockbuster based on the shape-changing tovs stars Mark Wahlberg as a widowed amateur inventor who gets drawn into the battle between good and bad alien robots. Cue lots of metalcrunching slow-motion destruction. (12, 165min)

X-Men: Days of Future Past

Hugh Jackman's Wolverine goes back in time to 1973 in a bid to alter the course of history and thereby stop the X-Men of the future from being wiped out. The knotty time-travel story in this superhero adventure unites the Marvel Comics mutants' older and vounger selves in a gripping yarn. (12, 131 min)

Rory McIlroy is tipped to win the big prize on Sunday night

As the BBC hands out its awards for sporting excellence in 2014, Rory McIlroy looks back over his most memorable year yet

LIVE AWARDS SHOW

Sunday, BBC1 HD, 8pm

The BBC celebrates 12 months of sporting achievement on Sunday when Gary Lineker, Clare Balding and Gabby Logan host the BBC Sports Personality of the Year live from Glasgow's Hydro Arena.

It's been a year of thrilling action, from the Winter Olympics and football's World Cup to Glasgow's Commonwealth Games and a memorable Formula One season.

Lewis Hamilton's recent world title triumph is sure to boost his chances of picking up the coveted award won last year by Andy Murray, but it's golfer Rory McIlroy who is the bookies' favourite following backto-back major wins in 2014. Here, the 25-year-old Northern Irishman reflects on a sensational year that also saw him help Europe retain the Ryder Cup...

What was your proudest achievement in 2014? Winning the Open Championship at Hoylake. I haven't had much time to reflect on it because it has been such a busy year, but seeing that Claret Jug is very special.

Why was it so satisfying? Going in, there were a lot of questions: 'How is he going to play?' Links golf isn't really his forte.' All this sort of stuff. I was really proud of my performance. My mum being there was very special. She had not experienced that before.

Some people point to changes in your private life making you more focused

I am in a really good place. I probably had

Clare, Gary and

Gabby with the

BBC trophy

the same between 2009 and 2011; I was settled then, played great golf and was consistent. It's one of the reasons I have been so consistent again this year; there aren't other things going on in the background that are distracting me.

Has this season taken your profile up to the next level? Yes, I have really noticed a difference. But nothing has changed with the people who know me. I'm still just Rory from Holywood to them. I'm that same boy who was up at the golf club every day hitting balls.

You live in Florida now. Do you miss Northern Ireland? I am a home bird, so I try to get back there as often as I can. Northern Ireland will always be my home. I love coming back.

couple of years but I wanted to start something of my own. That's why I set up The Rory Foundation for children with cancer. As I've become older, I've grasped more of what I can do in society. I don't want my children to be proud of their dad as a major championship winner, but as someone who was able to help people less fortunate.

If you win the Masters next year, you will complete a career grand slam of all the majors. Is that a big motivation? That is already the one thing I am really looking forward to next year. The green jacket is the last one. I know there is going to be a lot of hype and a lot of pressure going into Augusta but I just have to deal with that.

THIS YEAR'S SHORTLIST

1 Gareth Bale
The world's most expensive footballer helped Real Madrid win the Champions League and has been key to Wales's revival.

2 Charlotte Dujardin

The double Olympic dressage champion won the freestyle and special world titles on her horse Valegro.

3 Carl Froch
The boxer defeated
George Groves in front of a record 80,000 crowd at Wembley to retain his world super-middleweight titles.

4 Kelly Gallagher & Charlotte Evans Visually-impaired skier Kelly (right) and her guide earned Britain's first-ever Winter Paralympics golds when they won the Super-G in Sochi.

The Mercedes driver picked up his second Formula One world title after a titanic tussle with his team-mate Nico Rosberg.

6 Rory McIlroy
He won the Open
Championship and US
PGA Championship
before helping Europe to an emphatic Ryder Cup victory.

7 Jo Pavey
At the age of 40, the athlete became the oldest woman to claim a European title when she won the 10.000m in Zurich.

8 Adam Peaty
The swimmer won

LIVE DARTS PDC World Championship

From Thursday, Sky Sports Darts HD

Sky Sports 3 becomes Sky Sports Darts on Thursday as the channel begins its coverage of the action at London's Alexandra
Palace, where Holland's
Michael van Gerwen defends his PDC world title.

With several top players all currently in good form, Sky Sports' darts commentator Dave Clark is predicting a keenly-contested tournament.

'I'm convinced Phil Taylor has got another world championship up his sleeve,' he says. 'Especially now that he has got used to his new darts. James Wade is back in form, too, after winning the Masters last month. Van Gerwen made waves last year, and the Ally Pally crowd love him, but it's harder to defend your title than to win it.'

European Cross-Country Championships

Sunday, BBC red button, 8.10am

Hayley Yelling's victory

in 2009 was the last time a British athlete won individual gold in the annual cross-country competition, held this year in Samokov, Bulgaria.

However, Gemma Steel is finding form at the right time to mount a serious challenge, with the 29-year old looking to improve on last year's event in Belgrade, where she won a team gold and individual silver behind France's Sophie Duarte.

Race of Champions

Saturday & Sunday, Motors TV, 4pm

British racing driver Susie Wolff will become the first female driver to compete in the Race of Champions at this year's event, staged at the Bushy Park circuit in Barbados.

The 32-year-old – currently development
driver for the Williams
F1 team – will be up against a top-quality
field including Formula
One driver Romain
Grosjean, who won

Grosjean, who won the event in 2012, and

Susie Wolff races ninein Barbados time Le Mans 24 Hours winner Tom Kristensen.

The contest sees drivers from motorsport's major disciplines go head to head in identical cars on a circuit featuring two lanes and a crossover bridge. Last year's event was cancelled due to unrest in host city Bangkok.

Comedy

The Office (US)

This American sitcom, based on the UK comedy series created by Ricky Gervais and Stephen Merchant, chronicles the daily lives of the employees of the fictional Dunder Mifflin Paper Company in Scranton, Pennsylvania. Steve Carell scored a Primetime Emmy and a Golden Globe for his role as deluded boss Michael Scott who attempts to rally his employees into action, including snobbish Andy (Ed Helms), egomaniacal head salesman Dwight (Rainn Wilson), shy receptionist Pam (Jenna Fischer), mild-mannered rep Jim (John Krasinki) and eager temp Ryan (BJ Novak), as a documentary film crew captures every wince-worthy moment. Watch the first seven series on Netflix now.

Drama

The Good Wife

In this acclaimed US drama series, Julianna Margulies plays Alicia Florrick, the wife of a former State's Attorney (Chris Noth) who returns to work as a junior litigator at a law firm following a humiliating scandal which led to her husband being sent to prison. Watch the first four series on Netflix now.

Edge of Tomorrow: Live. Die. Repeat

Available now to rent

Tom Cruise is a winner all the way in this terrific sci-fi action thriller in which he plays an unwilling army officer caught in a time loop who finds himself reliving the same day of extraterrestrial combat over and over again.

Guardians of the Galaxy

Available now to rent

From Marvel comes the entertaining sci-fi romp about a misfit gang who stumble into a quest to save the galaxy from destruction. Chris Pratt plays the group's self-appointed leader, and he gets oddball support from the likes of a talking raccoon, voiced by Bradley Cooper.

Barclays Premier League

Saturday 20 December BT Sport 1 Manchester City v Crystal Palace

Champions Manchester City can't take anything for granted after their recent troubles, but with Sergio Agüero still banging in the goals they'll be confident in this lunchtime fixture at the Etihad. (kick-off 12.45pm).

Film

Planet Earth: The Complete Collection

Narrated by Sir David Attenborough, this landmark series available to watch on Netflix transports nature lovers from the top of the Himalayas to the depths of the ocean and everywhere in between, exploring the planet's fascinating wildlife and challenging environments.

Film

Belle

Available now to rent

Loosely based on a true story, this period drama stars Gugu Mbatha-Raw as the illegitimate mixed race daughter of a Royal Navy captain who falls for an idealistic lawyer and inspires her great-uncle Lord Mansfield to make a landmark legal ruling against the slave trade.

Coming soon

Michael Kitchen's senior MI5 agent investigates three new Cold War cases

DUE TO AIR January on ITV.

WHAT'S COMING UP As the hit drama returns, senior intelligence officer Christopher Foyle, who's aided by his faithful former driver Sam Wainwright (née Stewart), embarks on more Cold War investigations in three new films with the opener revolving around US businesses accused of fuelling Hitler's war machine.

The new episodes will also reflect on the black market, which is still thriving as rationing continues in the late-1940s, and the tangled web of promises to create a state of Israel in British Palestine.

WHO'S IN IT Michael Kitchen returns as Foyle alongside Honeysuckle Weeks as Sam. Ellie Haddington is also back as Foyle's boss, Hilda Pierce, along with Daniel Weyman as Sam's husband, Adam. John Mahoney, who's best known for playing Marty Crane in Frasier, guest stars as an oil baron in the first episode, High Castle. Other guests include Richard Lintern, Jaime Winstone and Nigel Lindsay.

WHY WE LOVE IT Writer Anthony Horowitz effortlessly manages to take Foyle from World War Two to the intrigue of the Cold War. His careful research means he always brings historical touches to the stories, which give them a compelling ring of truth.

WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Anthony Hopkins

The Oscar winner will appear in BBC2's adaptation of Ronald Harwood's play The Dresser, following the relationship between a veteran actor and his dresser. played by lan McKellen, in World War Two.

Sean Bean

The actor, most recently seen in Legends, will star in ITV Encore's six-part period crime drama The Frankenstein Chronicles playing a detective in pursuit of a crazed killer in Regency London.

Idris Elba

The actor will reprise his role as passionate cop DCIJohn Luther for a two-part special of the London-based crime drama Luther, which will start filming in March and air on BBC1.

Richard Ayoade

The IT Crowd star will present a Channel 4 travelogue, Travel Man, in which he tries to overcome his hatred of holidays by going on trips with famous faces, including Kathy Burke.
